B. Interview with direct care staff on November 27, 2007 revealed that Client #2 was dependent on staff for basic personal needs

On November 26, 2007, the client was observed wearing an adult protective under garments and dependent on staff for toileting. Also on the morning of November 27, 2007, the staff was observed assisting the client with her jacket. The staff confirmed that the client needs assistance with bathing, dressing and toileting.

Review of the client's habilitation record on November 28, 2007 revealed no documented evidence of training programs in these domains. Further review of the client's habilitation records failed to reveal that the client's personal care skills had been identified/assessed.

C. Review of the Client #2's IPP revealed objectives to enhance money management, communication and identify activities of daily living skills. At no time during the observations did the direct care staff encourage the client to participate in any of the aforementioned program objectives as identified below:

1. Given verbal assistance, [the client] will perform an action with an object upon request with 70% accuracy per sessions for three consecutive months.

2. Given verbal assistance, [the client] will identify two items needed to complete ADL task
